session Mr. S. B. Hawale and Mr. V. S. Tare present the topic Session – I : “Importance of Organic Farming for Human Health”

Session – II : “Importance of native Cow’s and its by-products”

Mr. S. B. Hawale shared their experience of organic farming cultivation technology, importance of organic farming and organic farming yields more nutritious and safe food. He told that, the organic produce market is now the fastest growing market all over the world including India. Organic agriculture promotes the health of consumers, the ecological health of a nation, and the economic growth of a nation by income generation holistically. India, at present, is the world’s largest organic producers.

Now a day the popularity of organic food is growing dramatically as consumer seeks the organic foods that are thought to be healthier and safer. Thus, organic food, perhaps ensures food safety from farm to plate. The organic farming process is more eco-friendly than conventional farming. Organic farming keeps soil healthy and maintains environment integrity, thereby, promoting the health of consumers.

In the second session Mr. V. S. Tare gives full of knowledge about organic farming, Importance of native Cow’s. Native Cows are the only species in this world whose products and by-products are created for the economic, social and spiritual betterment of human beings in many ways. Our ancient scriptures have extolled their inherent virtues and bestowed the status of a Universal Mother upon the Cow. The cows are useful in agricultural activities, sacred sanctity in religious context, A2 milk, food, healthcare and socio-economic development.

Educating the common man about the importance of native Indian cattle, their special characteristics, the superior quality of the milk of the native breeds, the medicinal properties of their products and by-products and their immense role in the welfare of humans and we can potential to enhance man’s physical, emotional, mental and spiritual well-being
